2.Pregabalin and gabapentin for breakthrough cancer pain in palliative care patients: a systematic review and network meta-analysis. Background: Breakthrough cancer pain (BT-CBP) is a major unmet need in palliative care, which is often poorly controlled and suboptimal. Pregabalin and gabapentin are the primary first-line agents for BT-CBP in most guidelines. We aimed to evaluate the efficacy and safety of pregabalin and gabapentin for BT-CBP, comparing pregabalin, gabapentin and placebo. Methods: We searched Medline and Embase from inception to 2 July 2018, for randomised controlled trials (RCTs) of pregabalin and gabapentin for BT-CBP. We used network meta-analyses to compare and rank the efficacy of pregabalin and gabapentin with placebo. We further conducted subgroup analyses to identify potential moderators. Outcomes were analgesic effects as measured by pain score (0-10), patient-reported quality of life scores (0-100) and frequency of adverse events (AEs). We used the Grading of Recommendations Assessment, Development and Evaluation (GRADE) approach to rate the quality of the evidence. Results: We included 11 RCTs (n = 1399) in network meta-analysis, and 10 trials (n = 1578) for the pairwise meta-analyses. For placebo, pregabalin and gabapentin showed a significant improvement in the pain score of patients compared with placebo. Pregabalin and gabapentin showed no significant difference in pain reduction compared with placebo. No trials included patients with severe pain (average pain score ≥ 7). Subgroup analyses indicated that pregabalin was superior to placebo for reducing pain of neuropathic pain-predominant (NNP) cancer pain, and gabapentin was superior to placebo for reducing pain of n
